Recent News Highlights

The First Minister is calling for the Westminster government to rethink its closure of Swansea Coastguard Station.

Carwyn Jones wants parliament to hold an independent assessment of the risks linked to the shutting the station.

He says pressure will be put on London to keep major coastguard stations in Wales open.

Work to demolish part of a Swansea shopping centre is now a step closer.

Councillors agreed yesterday to an application to knock down the empty part of the St David's Shopping Centre, and build a 160-space car park there in its place.

It's hoped the car park will boost the number of people going into the city centre and boost business.
